The Coinnge Committee's Resolution Pe-feated by a Vote of 186 to 154-The World's Fair Appropriation Bill Passed in the Sennie with Sunday Closing and Liquor Prohibition Amendments,

WASHINGTON, July 13 .- Not since the Silver bill was under consideration last April has the House of Representatives contained so many members as were present this morning. Even before the House assembled there was largely more than a quorum present, and the members were engaged in discussing the probable result of the silver battle. Although the day was hot, the attendance in the galleries was conspicuously large, including many ladies. Mrs. Crisp, the wife of the Speaker, occupied a seat in the members' gallery. Unlike the proceedings in April, no attempt was made to interrupt the early regular order. The committees were called for reports, and several attempts were made by Mr. Herman of Oregon to secure the passage of a private bill, but the confusion was so great, and the voice of the Speaker being drowned in the din of conversation, the bill was withdrawn. The Speaker ordered the Sergeant-at-Arms to maintain order, and after a few minutes busi-ness proceeded. A number of private pension bills which had been considered in Committee of the Whole last night were passed. During the reading and passage of the bills the buzz of conversation continued, and disorder prevailed all over the House until the services of the Sergeant-at-Arms were required.

Promptly at 12 o'clock, Mr. Catchings of Mississippi was on his feet asking for recogni-tion, but just then a pension bill was being read a third time and passed, and he failed to get the floor until 12:02. He then introduced a report from the Committee on Rules making the Free Coinage bill (Senate 51) the special order for to-day and Thursday.

When it was read at the desk, Mr. Reed moved to lay the resolution on the table. Speaker Crisp ruled that Mr. Catchings had the floor and could not be taken off.

Mr. Reed argued that the House ought to have the right to determine whether or not it shall dispose of the question without argu-ment. The motion to lay on the table was a privileged question, and Mr. Reed submitted that he had a right to make it at any time.

Speaker Crisp ruled that privileged questions could only be made when the gentleman desiring so to do had the floor in his own right. He had never before heard it suggested that an opponent to a measure could deprive the promoter or advocate of it of the right to present an hour's argument in support thereof.

Mr. Reed again urged the right of the House to determine whether or not this question hould be disposed of without an hour's debate. "We are ready on this side," he said in eonelusion, "to dispose of it now without de-conclusion, "to dispose of it now without debate."

Under the ruling of the Speaker, Mr. Catchings yielded fitteen minutes of the hour at his disposal to Mr. Bland. Mr. Bland sent to the desk and had read an amendment he proposed to offer to the bill to cure the defect caused by the repeal of the act of 1820, by which it has been asserted that the silver certificates issued under it would lose their legal-tender quality. He also announced that, in case the Bouse refused to second the demand for the consideration of the resolution, he would move to amend the resolution so as to provide that after 2 o'clock on Thursday no dilatory motion shal be entertained.

Mr. Bland said that certain gentlemen on the Democratic side had a delicacy upon the subject of a cleture rule which he could not understand. It had been the rule of the House for fifty years. Lapplause on Republican side.] No longer ago than last week, without a single bit of opposition on the Democratic side, sofar as he knew, the House, upon a report from the same committee, adopted a cloture rule, under which there had been passed several triff bills and other measures. In that case a two-thirds vote was required, and in this one only a majority. But the principle was the same. Mr. Bland said that he wanted to put every one on record, and he announced that every one who voted against consideration registered a vote against the bill.

Mr. Bartine itop., Nev.) said that he considered the success of free colmage paramount to any party success, and he would vote against seconding the previous question on this rule, believing that under it a vote on the bill could not be reached, and that was what he wanted.

Messers. Clark of Alabama and Forman of bill could not be reached, and that was what he wanted.

Mesers, Clark of Alabama and Forman of Illinois argued against the passage of the Silver bill, because it could lead to nothing more tangible than a registering of personal preferences aiready well known, and would lead to exposure of differences in the party.

Mr. Patterson of Tonnessee said he should oppose the passage of the bill for the reason that the silver question was not one that could be called a party one, inasmuch as both parties were divided on it. The Republican party, he said, had tendered the protective tariff and the Force bill as the issues of the campaign, and he was of the opinion that the Democrats should accept them and not wander off upon the Silver bill.

the Siver bill.

Mr. Catchings—I now yield to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. Reed).

Mr. Heed—I wish the gentleman would postpone his yielding until some one has shown us why he should do this thing.

Mr. Catchings—Do I understand that the gentleman does not wish to occupy the time?

Mr. Heed—I do wish to say a few words to the House.

gentleman does not wish to occupy the time?

Mr. Reed—I do wish to say a few words to the House.

As he proceeded to speak a calm, in striking contrast to the noise that had previously raged, was noticeable, and he was listened to with earnest attention. Mr. Reed said that he congratulated the Democrats upon the attitude of repeatance which they eccupied. All the time that the gentlemen were proclaiming how sorty they were for the views they recently entertained, his mind was occupied by a nicture of the Democratic party as a minority of this House in the last session, when all the leaders, from Speaker Crisp and Chairman Springer down, had announced that they yearned for free silver, and the declaration was followed in the Record by the statement:

"Applause on the Democratic side." The Democratic party really seemed to have reached a level which might be called a level of principle. But the gentleman from Tennessee has explained that away, and asserted that the Democratic party was organized to occupy public office.

"When it comes to actual business." continued Mr. Reed. "the lieuwhilcan party must come to the front as it has done to-day. I am not complaining that the Democratic party has not the courage of its had principles, but that it is ready to profess every principle founded in a want of knowledge on the part of the people, and sell themselves that they may wield office and vote. I am glad that they have seen the error of their ways. And I am not criticalsing the trembling voices in which the repentant sinners are returning home. If aughter.]

Mr. Reed said that he had great sympathy with one class who were in favor of the bill-those magnificent pionners who broadened the avenues of "mpire in the iand." They were so

Mr. Reed said that he had great sympathy with one class who were in favor of the bill—those magnificent ploneers who breadened the avenues of sympice in the land. They were so blinded by their own interests that they could not see what damage they would do to the business interests of the country or to themselves. But there were two classes with whom he had no sympathy. One was that class which sought to pay their debts in a cheaper coinage than that in which they were contracted. The other was a class sometimes represented here, which, without any conviction on the subject, was willing to advocate any principle that they might themselves hold office and their party assume that public trust they were so fond of exercising. The Republican party was not established for any such ourpose. [Derisive laughter on the Democratic side.] It is organized for such duty as it is performing to-day, that of enabing a Democratic House to do better than a Republican Senate can do for itself. Its duty is to do the best thing for the country, and that we must do here.

Mr. Pierce (Dem., Tenn.) said that he agreed abling a Democratic House to do better than a Republican Senate can do for itself. Its duty is to do the lest thing for the country, and that we must do here.

Mr. Pierce (Dem. Tenn.) said that he agreed with Mr. Reed as to the attribute of the Democratic minerity in the House last session, and he said to Democrats around him that they should make their record as a minerity party and as a majority party consistent.

"Some of you gentlemee," he continued, base your opposition to the Silver bill upon the ground that if it is amended it must go back to the Senate, where it will be lost and, anyhow, it can't become a law. If that is so, in the name of heaven why are you shooting your little poppun tariff bills through the House under a cloture rate?" [Laughter.]

Mr. Cuiberson of Texas closed the hour's debate in Mr impassioned speech of ten or twolve minutes. He said that the significance of today's contest, that which filled the galleries with speciators and put "printers" all over the floor, was the fact that it was the people's protest against monopoly. It was a fight of the common people against the money power. He devoted a great part of his remarks to a historical statement covering the dinancial operations of the past twenty years, all of which, he asserted, had been against the rights and interests of the people. So help me God!" Judge Cuiherson exclaimed with dramatic intensity, "the seople shall have the right to pay their debts in the mency of the Constitution."

Mr. Cuiberson's speech, next to that of Mr. Reed's, was the feature of the discussion, and at ille close he was greeted with the greatest applanse bestowed upon any speaker.

Mr. Catchings then moved the previous question on the resolution as reported from the committee, upon which motion Mr. Tracey them. At its demanded the yeas and nays.

120—a defeat for the free silver men, who wanted the rule amended, if it were to be adopted at all.

Mr. Catchines then moved the adoption of the resolution. The viva voce vote disclosed a preponderance of noes, and was so announced by the Speaker. Whereupon a demand was made for the yeas and nays, and they were taken, with the following result: Yeas, 136; nays, 154. So the resolution was defeated, and the House refused to consider the Free Silver bill out of its place on the calendar, near the foot.

BAY MESSUS, MILLER AND PLATT. ers Could Get On With, but They Bon't Like His Advisers-The National Execu-tive Committee to Meet on Saturday.

The interview in THE SUN yesterday with a distinguished Republican, who said that, as a friend of the President, he believed the Republicans of New York State had no animosity toward the Administration, except for Secretary "Charley" Foster, Secretary Elkins, and Secretary Tracy, is in accord with the opinions of the closest friends of Mr. Platt and Mr. Miller. The Tioga chieftain and the Herkimer statesman, it was said on the highest authority, have no serious differences with the President. Both Mr. Platt and Mr. Miller never go to Washington without calling at the White House. Of course, there is a difference of opinion, but it rests solely upon the conduct of the three members of his Cabinet mentioned.

Mr. Platt reiterated yesterday his statement that he wanted nothing for himself. Mr. Miller said the same. But the Republican organization of the State is in their hands. It has been pointed out that at the Minneapolis Convention Mr. Foster failed utterly to control the Ohio delegation for Mr. Harrison. Every man voted for McKinley. Mr. Elkins had no strength in West Virginia. Mr. Tracy, assisted by his distribution of Navy Yard patronage and his meddling with the patronage of the New York Post Office and Custom House, was able to control but four out of the eight votes in the Kings county delegation, and, all told, with the sid of Senator Hiscock and "Jake"
Patterson, the Harrison men could muster

Patterson, the Harrison men could muster but twenty-even out of the seventy-two delegates from the State.

These facts, it was remarked yesterday by sound authorities, should have convinced the Fresident that the wisdom of Mr. Foster, Mr. Elkins, and Mr. Tracy was not infallible. All that the New Yorkers desire, it was added, is that these three men shall not be permitted to continue their meddlesome interference. Neither Mr. Platt nor Mr. Miller will discuss the New York situation with any of the three gentlemen. They are loyal Republicans and a satisfactory understanding will casily be reached with the President himself, but there will be no conferences with Mr. Foster, Mr. Elkins, or Mr. Tracy. The New York State machine as at present dominated will receive the credit and the spoils in the event of victory.

Those are the terms upon which Mr. Plattand Mr. Miller and their friends insist. That is all they ask. They will insist upon this programme, and the President, his friends averred was quite willing to accede to such a reasonable measure. No man outside of political life can begin to understand the bitterness of New York Republicans against Mr. Foster, Mr. Elkins, and Mr. Tracy. The bost friends of the President admit readily that the three Cabinet officers have created mischief. Nobody in the State understands this better than Whitelaw Reid.

"One word from the President," a Republican worker said yesterday, "would aliay the had feeling existing at this time. There is no desire to ask the President to be disloyal to the members of his official family. The point is that the President scarcely understands that Mr. Foster, Mr. Elkins, and Mr. Tracy are bent upon paying off personal grundess. Were they true and loyal friends of the President the motives of the little coterie surrounding him."

The ex-officio members of the Campaign Committee are Thomas E. Pearsall, as Chairman of the Executive Committee; W. A. Furey, Secretary, and Charles H. Otts. Treasurer.

The Campaign Committee immediately organized by electing Mr. Pearsall Chairman, Mr. Furey Secretary, and Mr. Otts Treasurer. In accepting the place as manager of the Democratic hosts in Kings county, Mr. Pearsall promised that the canvass would be the most lively in the history of the organization, and that the tick-t would receive the loval and united support of the party. He predicted that the majority would at least equal that given to Mr. Flower last year.

A committee of three was appointed to look after the arrangements for the representatives of the Kings County Democracy at the cersmonies attending the notification of the Fresidential candidates.

Now that the Campaign Committee has been formed, ex-Register Hugh McLaughlin, the veteran leader of the Kings County Democracy, will soon start on his vacation. It will be spent at Greenport, L. I.

The Republican Executive Committee also mot last night, and eighty-five members of the cranalan committee in an advisory espacity, In the list are included J. S. T. Stranahan, ex-Congressman S. V. White, Gen. James Jourdan, ex-Mayor Frederick A. Schroeder, Frank Sperry, Wm. Berl, and Isaac K. Caroy. Chairman Wilson of the Campaign Committee propess to raise at least $50,000 to aid in reducing the Democratic majority. It is expected that each Advisory Committeeman will pony up handsomely. The Campaign Committee will open headquarters in a few days.

Branch Republican Bendquarters.

CHICAGO, July 13.-Branch headquarters for the Republican National Committee will be established in Chicago. As far as can now be ascertained, John A. Tanner, the Sub-Treasurer at this point, will have charge of the Chicago branch. Mr. Tanner was placed on the Executive Committee at the request of the President and his chief leutenant. Gen. Michener of Indiana and this was done with the purpose of establishing a branch head-quarters in Chicago.

SENATOR BRICE WILL NOT SERVE.

He Thinks Whitney Should Be Made Chair-man of the National Committee, Washington, July 13. - Senator Calvin S. Brice has no intention of retaining the Chair-manship of the National Democratic Committee during the coming campaign. A newspaper statement was shown him to-day to the effect that Mr. Cleveland, in order to avoid the difficulty which President Harrison has encountered in selecting a Chairman of the Republican committee, would probably insist upon the re-election of Senator Brice. "You may say for me," said Senator Brice to a Sun reporter, as he strolled through the corridors of the Arlington Hotel this evening. "that one campaign is about as much as I care to serve through. Under no circumstances would I serve again, and I have caused that fact to be pretty well understood whenever the subject has been mentioned. If I am not mistaken, early last spring I was interviewed by a reporter of THE SUN on this same subject, and I said then that I would not serve as Chairman of the National Committee during the campaign of 1892."

"Who is likely to be selected as Chairman if you will not accept ?" Nearly every member of the committee who has spoken to me on the subject is in favor of ex-Secretary Whitney. No other name has been mentioned that I am aware of. He is the logical Chairman, and all of us would be delighted to have him selected. The matter will be fully discussed and settled in New York week when the National Committee meets. We will hold our meeting directly after the candidates have been notified, select our Executive Committee, and open up the campaign with as little delay as possible. There will be no lack of material from which to make up the Executive Committee, and there is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Whitney can be elected if he will accept."

The Senator has a number of private matters pressing upon his attention just now, and, while he is a member of the National Committee, and will do whatever he can to promote the interests of the party, he cannot give up his entire time this fall to politics. He has just leased the residence of the late W. W. Corcoran, at the corner of Connecticut avonue and H street, for a term of five years. He proposes to make a number of alterations in the house with a view to residing there during the remainder of his service in the Senate.

Commissioner Carter was at the Arlington Hotel to-night to consult several friends of the Administration about the vacant Chairmanship of the Republican Committee. He says there is nothing definitely determined yet, but it is probable that some formal announcement will be made to-morrow. When asked if it was not hurtful to the prospects of the Republican candidates to have so much trouble in the selection of a leader, he replied that he supposed it was. He added that it was unfortunate that circumstances had arisen which necessitated a change in the original programme, but in view of the fact that there is plenty of time in which to organize the campaign, the middle of July is soon enough to announce the Chairman and formally open the campaign. When questioned whether he proposed to retire from the secretaryship in favor of ex-Representative McComas, he said he could not say anything on the subject before to-morrow. The politicians here think that either Senator Proctor or Gen. Michener will be made Chairman and ex-Representative McComas of Maryland Secretary. asked if it was not hurtful to the prospects of "The evils and dangers that menace the people of the South in case of Democratic defeat are appalling to those against whom they are especially directed, but it should not be for gotten in any quarter that those things cannot be visited upon one section of our people with-out endangering the safety which all find behind an honest and faithful observance of principles upon which our entire political fabric resta."

NEW YORK, July 13, 1892. At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Man-hattan Rallway Company, held this day, the follow-ing action was taken:

Again has death visited the Board of the Manhattar Railway Company and taken away one of its oldest directors. Cyrus W. Field became a director and President of the New York Elevated Railroad Company on the 18th of May, 1877. Until the New Yor Company was absorbed in the Manhattan Company in 1882, he continued to be such President, and from the 9th day of November, 1881, he has unit terruptedly been a director of the Manhattan Rati-way Company. At the time when he became con-nected with this system of clevated railroads, it was in its infancy. The New York Company, by its experimental half-mile section in Greenwich st., and by its single-track connection with the 30th st. station of the Hudson River Railroad, had slewly station of the Hudson siver mairroad, had nowly brought thoughtful and far-seeing men to the conviction that elevated railroads were not only the best means of meeting the question of intramural transportation, but also substantially the only practical method of solving the proof rapid transit for the city of New York. In 1877, however, but few capitalists were persuaded that the proposed system of elevated railroads laid out by the Mayor's Commission of 1875 could be speed sed system of elevated railroads laid out ily constructed and profitably operated. Mr. Field, however, was then convinced upon these points, and with the enthusiasm and confidence in his own convictions that were his prominent character-istics, he set out to convince others of the justices of his views. Many of those who have been, or are now, interested in the elevated railroads of New York have reason to be grateful for the efforts of Mr Field, resulting in the opinions that they then or subsequently formed with respect to the future of these properties, under his fervent language and earnest advocacy of his views. The world owes to him a great debt in connection with inter-national communication by means of aub-marine cable; that debt has been many times acknowledged, and the place of Cyrus W. Field in history is firmly established, and his position is acknowledged as the promoter of telegraphic comication between the eastern and the wester. hemispheres. The city of New York, where the active part of his life was massed, also is his debtor for his successful efforts in contributing largely to the rapidity of her growth and to her present onpacity for future expansion by the possession of her system of elevated railroads. Largeness of concep-tion, capacity to foresee the fature, to project his mind into the coming years and to behold what was unrevealed to most men, deep and earnest be-lief in his own views, and enthusiasm and boldness in earrying out his plans and impressing his convictions upon others were the leading mental traits of Cyrus W. Field. Love of social pleasures and open hospitality characterized his private life. In all parts of the civilized world he leaves friends who admired his large and broad grasp of great questions, who respected him for the suc-cesses that had crowned the great undertakings of personal qualities, and who will mourn the going out of his life, clouded as its last days have been b domestic afflictions and personal sorrows that have excited the unstinted sympathy even of those who knew him only by his large reputation. In no cir cle in which he moved will he be more missed than in the Board of Directors of the Manhattan Railway Company. With the sense of less occasioned by his death dwells the firm conviction that as year progress the city of New York and its inhabitants will realize even yet more fully than they do to day the benefits that they have received because in their midst once lived Cyrus W. Field.

Resolved. That the foregoing minute be spread at large upon the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Manhattan Railway Company, and that a copy thereof and of this resolution be transmitted by the secretary to the family of the late Cyrus W. Field A true copy. Attest:
D. W. McWILLIAMS, Secretary.
